

Short biography

Bernd Simon (born in 1960) studied psychology, sociology, and philosophy at the Universities of Münster (Germany) and Kent at Canterbury (England). He earned his diploma, Ph.D., and habilitation from the University of Münster and was a visiting scholar at the University of California (Santa Cruz and Santa Barbara, USA), the University of Oregon in Eugene (USA), the Australian National University in Canberra (Australia), and San Francisco State University (USA).

Since 1998 Bernd Simon is Professor of Social Psychology and Evaluation Research – and since 2008 also Professor of Political Psychology – and one of the Directors of the Institute of Psychology at the Christian-Albrechts-University in Kiel (Germany). In his research, Bernd Simon investigates inter- and intragroup processes, with particular emphasis on minority-majority relations and issues of identity, politicization, power, respect, and tolerance.